ONE NEWS PAGE CELEBRATES 100 MOVIE REVIEWS MILESTONE

One News Page today announces that its popular movie reviews section has unveiled its 100th review since its launch in January 2016. The section, which sees regular columns written by resident critic Graham Pierrepoint, has also been enhanced to mark the occasion – allowing readers to review movie ratings from Graham and One News Page in alphabetical order for easy access.

Graham's reviews started appearing on the site from the beginning of 2016, with his analysis of the Oscar-winning Spotlight kicking things off. From there on in, One News Page played host to reviews of some of the year's biggest hits – and misses. During 2016, only two movies – the animated Kubo and The Two Strings and sci-fi epic with a twist, Arrival – received the hallowed five-star rating, with no movies thus far in 2017 receiving the honour.

Other movies, however, haven't been so lucky. "I enjoy writing movie reviews for One News Page," Graham states. "If that means I have to sit through Norm of the North or Suicide Squad, then so be it!" Movies that have received the lowest grade thus far – a half star – include the bizarre Nine Lives (in which Kevin Spacey plays a cat), the aforementioned Norm of the North and CGI animated prequel Top Cat Begins. However, there is still the possibility of zero stars, according to Graham – which may or may not rear its head this year.

Of the movies that have surprised Graham the most in the first 100 he has reviewed, he considers Arrival, Split and even the recent Power Rangers among them. He's even courted some controversy by going against critical consensus on movies such as Ghostbusters and The Secret Life of Pets, both of which he rated far below the mainstream opinion, and heaped praise on Eddie the Eagle, a movie that Graham still feels is immensely under-appreciated (it's available now on Netflix in some regions).

"Graham's writing style is sharp and insightful yet entertaining," comments Dr. Marc Pinter-Krainer, Founder and CEO of One News Page. "No wonder his movie review section is becoming increasingly popular with our users."

One News Page's movie reviews section goes from strength to strength, with twice-weekly updates posted to keep cinema buffs up to date. Will we see any five-star accolades this year? Will that elusive zero star rating ever emerge? Stay tuned to One News Page!
