FORMULA ONE COVERAGE BY F1 FANSITE ACCESSIBLE VIA ONE NEWS PAGE

Online news and media portal One News Page today announces the inclusion of F1 Fansite content in its Formula 1 spotlight section.

With the 2018 Formula One World Championship in full swing - four races remain in the current season with Lewis Hamilton expected to defend his World Drivers' Champion title for the fifth time - interest in the long-established motorsport has been increasing recently.

Dedicated fan websites play an ever-increasing important role for any sports followers and One News Page today announces the inclusion of one of the most established fan websites specialising in the Formula One motorsport, F1 Fansite, amongst its verified sources of trustworthy news content.

"Our spotlight section dedicated to the latest Formula One media coverage has been increasing in popularity this year," advises Dr Marc Pinter-Krainer, CEO of One News Page. "We're pleased to announce the inclusion of one of the most-established fan websites dedicated to the sport as one of our vetted news sources accessible within that section."

F1 Fansite (<https://www.f1-fansite.com>) was founded by Formula One enthusiast Leopold Pleijsier in 2001 with the aim to provide the millions of F1 fans with the best information available on the internet.

"One News Page is recognised as one of the leading news portals allowing readers to discover trustworthy news content. F1 Fansite focuses on high quality content related to everything Formula One and we are pleased to be included as news source on One News Page", comments Pleijsier.

One News Page's Formula One spotlight section features live-updating news and media coverage and is accessible at <https://www.onenewspage.com/s/f1>.
